

Pissi Myles

Pissi Myles was born kicking and screaming and hasn't stopped since. As a comedian, singer, and humorist, Pissi has been noted as one of the most talented queens in the North East by fans, critics, and peers. She's been featured in Cosmopolitan Magazine, Mic, RuPaul's What's the T Podcast, and more! She received her BFA in Musical Theatre from Montclair State University in 2011, which was promptly traded in for big hair and sequined gowns.

Pissi is the title-holder of Miss Fish NYC 2014, a pageant to find the "fishiest" queen in NYC. You can view Pissi's talent presentation of her original parody of Lourde's Royals, Real Girls here. She is also the winner of Cycle 4 of Mimi Imfurst's Philly Drag Wars, a thirteen-week competition in the style of RuPaul's Drag Race. You can see Pissi's winning performance here.

Following her win in Philly Drag Wars, Pissi has continued to produce successful comedy shows such as Ham and Milk: An Unbalanced Meal with NYC's The Dairy Queens, Ham and Meth with famed London queen Meth, and her monthly comedy show What Makes Me Pissi at L'Etage in Philadelphia. Her hosting and comedic talents have earned her the title of 2014's Best Drag Hostess in Philadelphia at the Beacon Light Awards.

In 2017, Pissi wrote and starred in Babashook, a parody video in response to the internet outing The Babadook as a gay icon. The video quickly began to go viral after being covered by outlets such as Billboard, Huffington Post, Queerty, and Hello Giggles.
